DROPPED DEAD AT HIS DINNER TABLE

Charles Weikert, of Littlestown, Expires Suddenly from Acute Indigestion. Had been about Town as Usual. Mr. Pensyl Dead.

Charles Weikert, a well known citizen of Littlestown, died suddenly while seated at the dinner table at his home at noon to-day, as the result of an attack of acute indigestion. He was about 65 years of age.

Mr. Weikert was taken ill with the same disease earlier in the week and was seriously ill at that time but had apparently recovered and on Friday evening was about the town as usual. He showed no signs of illness this morning, and was to all appearances in his usual health at the dinner table. Suddenly his head dropped forward and his wife went to his side, only to find that death had come instantly and without warning.

For several years Mr. Weikert was a member of the firm of Weikert and Fink who conducted the warehouse at Littlestown, but for a long time he had been living retired at his home. He leaves his wife, who before marriage was Miss Mary Fink, of Baltimore. They have no children and both of his sisters are dead so that his widow is his sole surviving near relative.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

CALVIN D. PENSYL

Calvin David Pensyl, a well known resident of Butler township, died at his home on Friday morning at 7:15 after an illness of several weeks from apoplexy, aged 62 years, 9 months and 19 days.

He leaves his wife and four children, Mrs. Belle Heiges, of Biglerville; Charles, Maud and William Pensyl, at home. He also leaves a brother, George Edward Pensyl, of Iowa.

Funeral Monday morning, with brief services at the house at 7:30. Further services and interment at Mumford's Meeting House, near East Berlin. Friends and relatives will accept this as notice of the funeral.

AN OLD FRACTURE

Leg Broken Five Weeks ago. Discovery Made by X-Ray.

Warren Hall, of college, is suffering from the fracture of a bone in the ankle, the result of an injury sustained five weeks ago while playing base ball at Frostburg. He was able to resume the game after several days and was about as usual. When the ankle showed signs of swelling this week a local physician advised that he have an X-ray photograph made of it and the picture showed plainly the fracture. A plaster cast was made and Mr. Hall will now have to go about with the use of crutches. He had been counted on for the foot ball squad but will not be able to get into the game this season.

MR. GARDNER APPOINTED

Former Candidate is Named as Register and Recorder.

Governor Tener has appointed Charles W. Gardner, of York Springs, to fill the unexpired term of register and recorder made vacant by the death of Emanuel H. Berkheimer. He will serve from the present time to January 1, 1916. Mr. Gardner was the Republican nominee against Mr. Berkheimer at the general election but withdrew in the latter's favor. He has for many years conducted a store at York Springs.

CONTEST CREATES GREAT INTEREST

Much Surprise Expressed at Magnitude of Undertaking and Many Inquiries Made as to Details of the Circulation Campaign.

The announcement in yesterday's paper of the $1500 circulation campaign, to be inaugurated by The Gettysburg Times and Adams County News, has created an interest throughout the town and county far greater than it was thought possible. People from all sections read the announcement with amazement, and at first many thought that there was some mistake as the proposition seemed far too big for a paper in a town the size of Gettysburg to attempt.

However it is perfectly true and there is no mistake. The contest as announced will be started at once and will be conducted just as the rules state. The prizes have all been purchased and everything is in readiness to begin the actual work of explanation and help to the people who are interested.

And for this purpose the Campaign Manager will be found at his desk in The Times office, at any time during the day. He will be glad to talk with anyone interested and go over the plan in detail with them.

Announcement of the two districts will be made in Monday's Times.

Here is an opportunity well worth the earnest consideration of anyone. The contest affords a chance of winning one of a number of valuable prizes without the chance of losing a single cent. Anyone can enter and all are assured of at least being well paid for the time and effort which they spend.

WAS KILLED IN RAILROAD CRASH

Miss Harriet Bollinger One of Ten Victims Instantly Killed in Accident on Railroad in Alabama. Funeral in Taneytown.

In a railroad accident near Livingston, Alabama, on Friday Miss Harriet Bollinger, of Taneytown, was instantly killed together with nine other passengers, while thirty were injured.

The train was a New Orleans and New York Limited, running about 30 miles an hour. It dashed into an open switch and crashed into a heavy loaded car of slag. The cause of the open switch is not known. All of the cars, except Pullmans, were completely demolished, and the killed are supposed to have met instant death.

Miss Bollinger was on her way to this section. She had with her a boy from East India whom she intended having educated in this country, and had left him at a hotel in Meridian, Miss. Whether he was to be entered in school there, or brought North after arrangements had been made, is not known.

Miss Bollinger had been living in various parts of Europe for the past 18 or 19 years, since the death of her father, and was recently engaged in missionary work in India. Until the death of her mother she lived in Westminster, where she was graduated from Western Maryland College. After her mother's death, she and her father, Joseph Bollinger—a brother of the late David Bollinger—lived in Taneytown, where her father died. Her near relatives in Taneytown and vicinity are Mrs. F. H. Seiss, and the families of David Hess, Judson Hill, F. G. Shoemaker and D. W. Shoemaker.

Miss Bollinger had been highly educated, the possessor of ample means, and had a fondness for helping those in need, along educational lines, the rest of her efforts being expended in foreign countries. In addition to her personal work, she is supposed to have extended financial aid to a number of institutions in a very liberal manner.

Just what her mission was to this country, aside from the education of the boy mentioned, is not known, but it may be that she came with the intention of spending the remainder of her life at Taneytown. On Wednesday afternoon the body arrived at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Seiss, in Taneytown, and on Thursday afternoon funeral services and interment took place at Piney Creek Presbyterian Church, the services being in charge of Rev. T. H. Lewis and Rev. Dr. Elderdice, of Westminster, assisted by the local pastor, Rev. Seth Russell Downie. Rev. L. B. Hafer conducted a brief service at the house.

Miss Mary Webb is visiting her father near Pittsburgh.

Humphrey Deibert will lecture on "Folks You and I Have Met" at Fruit Growers' Hall, October 14th.

BRODBECK TALKS TO DEMOCRATS

Congressman, Present at Meeting of County Committee, Lauds Wilson Administration, Commending his Efforts for Peace.

The Democratic County Committee met at the Lincoln Way Hotel this morning to adopt the proposed changes in the party rules which had been placed before the committee recently. All the changes as outlined were approved.

Congressman Brodbeck was in attendance at the meeting and addressed the committeemen. In his speech he spoke in glowing terms of the success of the Wilson Administration in dealing with the Mexican question and of the success, up to this time, in preventing entanglements on account of the European War.

"Mr. Wilson being a man of peace," he said, "is heart and soul interested in the effort to prevent the United States from becoming involved in the foreign difficulty and it behoves every Democrat and every good American citizen to lend their support and interest toward this end".

Miss Bollinger had been living in various parts of Europe for the past 18 or 19 years, since the death of her father, and was recently engaged in missionary work in India. TEUTONS BOMBARD VERDUN

Frontier Forts Being Attacked
From Three Sides.

At the Battle Front, Sept. 26.—French and British troops, intermingled with Turcos and Moors, not only held their own, but caused the strongly reinforced German western wing to reel backward near St. Quentin and imperiled the German line of communication toward the frontier of Belgium.

The German center has been weakened in order that troops may be rushed to meet the threatening movement of the allies, and two strong forces were engaged at close quarters between St. Quentin and Tergnier (an important railway junction fifteen miles due south of St. Quentin).

The military authorities naturally refuse to permit the disclosures of the exact position of the fighting, but it is generally known that the battle now progressing is of prime importance.

Meanwhile at other parts of the battle line, which is about 200 miles long, fighting continued in a dogged fashion all day. The allied troops followed the example set by the Germans and dug themselves deeply in.

The artillery of both armies kept up an incessant fire, while French and German aviators reconnoitered from above.

The commanders of the allied forces have found reason for the wonderful precision of the German fire in a spy discovered in their lines, who had signified directions. He was caught and immediately shot.

French Forced Back.

The last official statement issued in Paris said that the French troops in the region of Noyon were compelled to give ground before superior forces, but, having been reinforced, again assumed the offensive, the engagement being one of particular violence.

An earlier statement said:

"First—On our left wing there has begun general action of great violence between those detachments of our forces that are operating between the River Somme and the River Oise and the army corps, which the enemy has grouped in the region around Tergnier and St. Quentin. These army corps have come, some from the center of the enemy's line and others from Lorraine and the Vosges. These last named corps were transported by rail to Cambrai by the way of Liege and Valenciennes. To the north of the River Aisne, as far as Berry-au-Bac, there has been no change of importance.

"Second—On the center we have made progress to the east of Rheims in the direction of Berry-au-Bac and Moronvilliers.

"Further to the east, as far as the Argonne region, the situation shows no change. To the east of the Argonne the enemy has not been able to move out of Varennes. On the right bank of the River Meuse the enemy succeeded in getting a footing on the heights of the Meuse, in the region of the promontory of Hatton Chateau, and, forced in the direction of St. Mihel, he bombarded the forts of Paroches and of Camp Des Romaines. To offset this, to the south of Verdun we remain masters of the heights of the Meuse, and our troops, moving out of Toul, advanced until they reached the region of Beaumont.

"Third—On our right wing, Lorraine and the Vosges we have repulsed attacks of minor importance on Nomery. To the east of Lumeville the enemy has made some demonstrations along the lines of the River Vogeuse and the River Blette."

The French troops have constructed a series of elaborate redoubts. Defensive works have also been erected for the protection of the batteries on the hills.

Counting the fresh works, which were erected to repel the German attack, there are no less than fifteen forts around Verdun, on both sides of the Meuse river. The most of these are fortresses of the first class, which were erected when the German advance against the city began. They are protected with the finest artillery in the French army and the garrison contains an army in itself.

The German troops are attacking the entire line of the French fortifications along the French eastern frontier from Verdun to Toul. In an attempt to raise the siege and prevent the demolition of their forts, already suffering severely from the German shell fire, the French have made several attacks in force on the German lines.

"All have been repulsed with heavy

DIAZ TO JOIN MEXICAN REVOLT

Calls First Chief a "Stupid Old Man."

70,000 MEN AT COMMAND

Villa Is Mobilizing His Troops and and Preparing to Name a Civilian Provisional President.

New Orleans, Sept. 26.—Felix Diaz announced that he was ready to join with General Villa in a movement that would reestablish the Diaz family in power in Mexico. He has held a number of conferences with Jose San Tana, representative of Villa.

"General Carranza is a stupid old man," said Diaz. "He is sound asleep. Villa has 40,000 men. Zapata will join us with 10,000, and there are 20,000 more under arms awaiting my word in Oaxaca.

"American troops must be withdrawn from Mexico before peace can come, however."

Villa to Name Provisional President.

Juarez, Mex., Sept. 26.—The elimination of General Carranza as first chief of the Constitutional army by a show of force, but without further bloodshed, and the naming of a civilian as provisional president, probably Fernando Iglesias Calderon, head of the Liberal party, to be followed by the establishment of a government strictly along the lines of the "Plan of Guadalupe," as amended by the July conference at Torreon, is the program which General Francisco Villa and the eleven generals of the army of the northern division adopted at their all-night conference at Chihuahua last Tuesday.

Every step in the campaign which began with the order for mobilization at Chihuahua and Torreon has been carefully worked out. The program contemplates the immediate seizure of Tampico, to be followed by the occupation of Monterrey and Saltillo by Villa troops. A general movement to the south will then begin. With an army which Villa estimates will number between 40,000 and 60,000 men, an advance will be made in the direction of Mexico City.

At a point not yet named, but which is probably Queretaro, Villa will join his forces and send an appeal to Carranza to avoid further bloodshed by voluntary retirement.

May Fight Near Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, Sept. 26.—Constitutional troops sent out to the north of Vera Cruz to check the supposed revolutionary movement under Higinio Aguilar, are reported to have entered the mountains below Alta Luz, where this former Federal general and his forces were last seen and where he appeared to be awaiting attack.

Carranza Mediators Named.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 26.—Telegraphic dispatches received here by Samuel Belden, legal representative for General Carranza, from R. V. Pesquera, now in Mexico City, announces that following a conference there a board of military chiefs has been appointed to mediate the grievances between Carranza and Villa.

U. S. TROOPS TO STAY AT VERA CRUZ.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Secretary of War Garrison ordered Brigadier General Funston, commanding the American forces at Vera Cruz, not to withdraw during the next ten days. Secretary Garrison announced that the order was caused by a delay in the adjustment of many details incident to the transfer of funds and the customs houses.

TO BAN WHOOPING COUGH.

Homeopaths Favor a Quarantine on the Disease.

Wernersville, Pa., Sept. 26.—Physicians speaking at the State Homeopathic Medical society's convention in Galen Hall said that a strict quarantine should be established on all cases of whooping cough. The disease is far more serious than generally thought, it was declared.

Dr. F. M. E. Howell, of Reading, criticized physicians who fail to report whooping cough, and said the health departments should take prompt measures to check the disease. Among those advocating quarantine were Dr. C. F. Raue, Philadelphia, and Dr. D. Youngman, Atlantic City.

Attacked on Three Sides.

London, Sept. 26.—The fortress of Verdun apparently is now being attacked for twenty-four hours.

The railroad to Chalone on the west is still open as its line of communication and source of supplies and reinforcements.

More than 5000 shells, each about five feet long and nearly seventeen inches in diameter, are being hurled against the Verdun forts during every twenty-four hours.

The cannonade goes on night and day. Trained gunners, whose life work has been the study of scientific artillery fire, are at the German front at Verdun directing the bombardment. The Germans have more than 100 of the heavy guns in action there, not counting the light artillery which is being used against the French troops when they make sorties.

The French troops have constructed a series of elaborate redoubts. Defensive works have also been erected for the protection of the batteries on the hills.

Confess to Theft of $80,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 26.—Herman F. Borchers and George F. Hoffmeyer, employees of the Colonial Trust company, arrested several months ago for embezzling $89,000, pleaded guilty. Borchers was fined $1500 and given two and a half years in prison; Hoffmeyer received an indeterminate sentence of from three to four and a half years.

Abdul Hamid Warns Turkey.

Petrograd, Sept. 26.—Abdul Hamid, former sultan of Turkey, has warned the Committee of Union and Progress that Turkey will be lost if it enters upon a war against Russia. Word has reached Petrograd from Constantinople that Adrianople is short of provisions.

Swiss Bar German Army.

Rome, Sept. 26.—The Giornale D'Italia publishes a report from Basle that Switzerland has refused a request from the Germans for permission to send three army corps (120,000 men) across Swiss territory.

CHAPTER I.

At the Stage Door.

Courtlandt sat perfectly straight; his ample shoulders did not touch the back of his chair; and his arms were folded tightly across his chest. The characteristic of his attitude was tenseness. The nostrils were well defined, as in one who sets the upper jaw hard upon the nether. His brown eyes—their gaze directed toward the stage whence came the voice of the prima donna—epitomized the tension, expressed the whole as in a word.

Just now the voice was pathetically subdued, yet reached every part of the auditorium, kindling the ear with its singularly mellowing sweetness. To Courtlandt it resembled, as no other sound, the note of a muffled Burmese gong, struck in the dim incensed cavern of a temple. A Burmese gong: briefly and magically the stage, the audience, the amazing gleam and scintillation of the Opera, faded. He heard only the voice and saw only the purple shadows in the temple at Rangoon, the oriental sunset splashing the golden dome, the wavering lights of the dripping candles, the dead flowers, the kneeling devotees, the yellow-robed priests, the tatters of gold-leaf, fresh and old, upon the rows of placid grinning Buddhas. The French horns blared and the timpani crashed. The curtain sank slowly. The audience rustled, stood up, sought its wraps, and passed toward the exits and the grand staircase. It was all over.

Courtlandt took his leave in leisure. Here and there he saw familiar faces, but these, after the finding glance, he studiously avoided. He wanted to be alone. Outside he lighted a cigar, not because at that moment he possessed a craving for nicotine, but because like all inveterate smokers he believed that tobacco conduced to clarity of thought. And mayhap it did. At least, there presently followed a mental calm that expelled all this confusion. The goal waxed and waned as he gazed down the great avenue with its precise rows of lamps. Far away he could discern the outline of the brooding Louvre.

There was not the least hope in the world for him to proceed toward his goal this night. He realized this clearly, now that he was face to face with actualities. A wild desire seized him to make a night of it—Maxim's, the cabarets; riot and wine. Who cared? But the desire burnt itself out between two puffs of his cigar. Ten years ago, perhaps, this brand of amusement might have urged him successfully. But not now; he was done with tomfool nights. Indeed, his dissipations had been whimsical rather than brutal; and retrospection never aroused a furtive sense of shame.

He was young, but not so young as an idle glance might conjecture in passing. To such casual reckoning he appeared to be in the early twenties; but scrutiny, more or less infallible, noting a line here or an angle there, was disposed to add ten years to the score. There was in the nose and chin a certain decisiveness which in true youth is rarely developed. This characteristic arrives only with manhood, manhood that has been tried and perhaps buffeted and perchance a little disillusioned.

What was one to do who had both money and leisure linked to an irresistible desire to leave behind one place or thing in pursuit of another, indeterminately? The inherent ambition was to make money; but recognizing the absurdity of adding to his income, which even in his extravagance he could not spend, he gave himself over into the hands of grasping railroad and steamship companies, or their agencies, and became for a time the slave of guide and dragoman and carrier. And then the wanderlust descended to him from the blood of his roving Dutch ancestors, which had lain dormant in the several generations following, sprang into active life again. He became known in every port of call. He became known also in the wildernesses.

Whatever had for the moment appealed to his fancy, that he had done. He was alone, absolute master of his millions. Mammies with marriageable daughters declared that he was impossible; the marriageable daughters never had a chance to decide one way or the other; and men called him a fool. He had promoted elephant fights which had stirred the Indian princes out of their melancholy indifference, and tiger hunts, which had, by their duration and magnificence, threatened to disrupt the efficiency of the British military service—whimsical excesses not understandable by his intimate acquaintances who cynically arraigned him as the fool and his money.

But, like the villain in the play, his income still pursued him. Certain scandals inevitably followed, scandals he was the last to hear about and the last to deny when he heard them. Many persons, not being able to take into the mind and analyze a character like Courtlandt's, sought the line of least resistance for their understanding, and built some precious exploits which included dusky island princesses, diaphanous dancers, and comic opera stars.

Simply, he was without a direction; a thousand goals surrounded him and none burned with that brightness which draws a man toward his destiny; until one day. Personally, he possessed graces of form and feature, and was keener mentally than most young men who inherit great fortunes and distinguished names.

Automobiles of all kinds panted hither and thither. An occasional smart coupe went by as if to prove that prancing horses were still necessary to the dignity of the old aristocracy. Courtlandt made up his mind suddenly. He laughed with bitterness. He knew now that to loiter near the stage entrance had been his real purpose all along, and persistent lying to himself had not prevailed. In due time he took his stand among the gilded youth who were not privileged (like their more prosperous elders) to wait outside the dressing rooms for their particular ballerina. By and by there was a little respectful commotion. Courtlandt's hand went instinctively to his collar, not to ascertain if it were properly adjusted, but rather to relieve the sudden pressure. He was enraged at his weakness. He wanted to turn away, but he could not.

A woman issued forth, muffled in silks and light furs. She was followed by another, quite possibly her maid. One may observe very well at times from the corner of the eye: that is, objects at which one is not looking, come within the range of vision. The woman paused, her foot upon the step of the modest limousine. She whispered something hurriedly into her companion's ear, something evidently to the puzzlement of the latter, who looked around irresolutely. She obeyed, however, and retreated to the stage entrance. A man, quite as tall as Courtlandt, his face shaded carefully, intentionally perhaps, by one of those soft Bavarian hats that are worn successfully only by Germans, stepped out of the gathering to profess his assistance. Courtlandt pushed him aside calmly, lifted his hat, and smiling ironically, closed the door behind the singer. The step which the other man made toward Courtlandt was unequivocal in its meaning. But even as Courtlandt squared himself to meet the coming outbreak, the stranger paused, shrugged his shoulders, turned and made off.

The lady in the limousine—very pale could any have looked closely in her face—was whirled away into the night. Courtlandt did not stir from the curb. The limousine dwindled, once it flashed under a light, and then vanished.

"It is the American," said one of the waiting dandies.

"The icicle!"

The volcano, rather, which feels believe extinct."

"Probably sent back her maid for her Bible! Ah, these Americans; they are very amusing."

"She was in magnificent voice to-night. I wonder why she never sings Carmen?"

"Have I not said that she is too cold? What! Would you see frost

Rehabilitation of Her Merchant Marine as Result of War Would Make Her Queen of the Seas—Number of Commercial Vessels Now Is 4,096, Compared With England's 11,539.

Rehabilitation of the United States merchant marine will make America the queen of the seas from the broadest standpoint, according to a statement made by the American bureau of shipping, which has been foremost in efforts to re-establish American supremacy on the ocean.

No, the wine was sufficient.

Courtlandt poured out a second glass slowly. The wine bubbled up to the brim and overflowed. He had been looking at the glass with unseeing eyes. He set the bottle down impatiently. Fool! To have gone to Burma, simply to stand in the golden temple once more, in vain, to recall that other time; the starving kitten held tenderly in a woman's arms, his own scurvy among the booths to find the milk so peremptorily ordered, and the smile of thanks that had been his reward! He had run away when he should have hung on. He should have fought every inch of the way. . . .

"Monsieur is lonely?"

A pretty young woman sat down before him in the vacant chair.

SUGGESTS WARTIME DIET.

Macaroni and Cheese an Ideal Meat Substitute, Says Health Board.

A New York health department bulletin urges people to depend on macaroni and cheese instead of meat as the ideal "wartime diet."

Dr. Marion B. McMillan, chief of the food inspection bureau of the board of health, says that, for many persons who are unable to buy sufficient quantities of meats to sustain their families, macaroni and cheese would be an ideal food.

"Let the American housewife take a lesson from her Italian cousin and learn the many palatable dishes to be made from macaroni and spaghetti," says the bulletin. "Very little of the amount of nourishment contained in an average helping (two helping tablespoonfuls of macaroni) is lost with cheese. Such a helping contains three times as much nourishment as a helping of lean roast beef and is practically equal to the latter in building up bone, bone and sinew. Study the following comparison:

"Roast beef (lean). A helping (100 grams) contains 150 calories, of which 90 calories are protein.

"Macaroni baked with cheese. A helping (150 grams) contains 450 calories, of which 80 calories are protein.

"Smash the high cost of living. Meat every day is unnecessary."

PEACE HYMN FOR OCT. 4.

The Federal Council of Churches and the Church Peace Union have recommended that "the peace hymn" by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes be sung in all the churches of the United States on the occasion of the day of prayer for peace, Sunday, Oct. 4, designated in the proclamation of President Wilson. The hymn, which will be sung to the tune of "St. Agnes" by J. B. Dykes, is as follows:

God of the nations, near and far,
Ruler of all mankind,
Bless thou thy people as they strive
The paths of peace to find.

The clash of arms still shakes the sky,
King battles still with king;
Wild through the bright air of night
The bloody tocsins ring.

But clearer far the friendly speech
Of scientists and seers,
The wise debate of statesmen and
The shout of pioneers.

And stronger for the clasped hands
Of labor's teeming throngs,
Who in a hundred tongues repeat
Their common creeds and songs.

O Father, from the curse of war,
We pray thee give release
And speed, oh, speed the blessed day
Of justice, love and peace!

Russians Near German Border

Dual Alliance Massing Troops to Meet Invaders.

Cossacks Reach Cracow

There Were Rumors Several Days Ago That Czar's Cavalry Was Seen a Few Miles From Breslau.

London, Sept. 26.—The news of the war in the east indicates, after all reasonable allowances for exaggeration are made, that the immense Russian forces are rapidly nearing the German frontier, on a line of advance 150 miles wide.

London expects within a week to hear of a pitched battle, as vast as that of the Aisne, between 1,000,000 Germans and Austrians, who are concentrating on this line to save the kaiser's territory, and 1,500,000 Russians.

Belief that the direct Russian advance against Germany is rapidly progressing is partially confirmed by an announcement of the Breslau Gazette that the military authorities there have cut all telegraphic communication between Breslau, Posen, Oppeln and Liebnitz. This would indicate the approach of the Russian armies, and two days ago there were rumors that Cossacks had been seen a few miles east of Posen.

It is now certain that the Russian advance is a double movement. A great army is moving westward and southwestward from Warsaw and the south for the purpose of striking at Posen, while another army, released from Galicia by the collapse of Austrian resistance, is co-operating by an advance against Cracow.

It is conservatively estimated that the Russian strength in the two big armies is not fewer than 1,500,000 exclusive of the reserves held to guard Galicia and Russian Poland and to complete siege operations.

There are reliable reports also that Russia, having now at the front ample troops for the invasion of Germany, is now assembling a second line of 2,000,000 men.

Czar's Victories Continue.

Petrograd, Sept. 26.—Russian troops have captured the fortified towns of Krusenice and Felsztyn, in Galicia opening the way to a final assault on Cracow, an important railroad center.

They also have defeated the garrison of Przemysl, the last Austrian stronghold on the River San, when it made a sortie in an attempt to raise the siege that has been in progress for five days.

The Przemysl troops are now bottled up within the forts, upon which the Russians are keeping up a ceaseless bombardment. Three attempts by the German troops invading Russia from East Prussia to capture Kovno, Russia, have been repulsed and the invaders have been driven back.

Vienna Hears of Victory.

Vienna, Sept. 26.—It was officially announced that the Austrian troops had come in contact with Russian forces in northern Galicia, and had driven them back across the Vistula river with heavy loss.

Kaiser Seriously Ill

Said to Have Caught Cold From a Drenching on Visit to Soldiers.

The Hague, Sept. 26.—Reports declared to come from a reliable source state that Emperor William of Germany is seriously ill at the headquarters of the general staff in Luxembourg, and that a specialist has been summoned from Berlin to care for him.

His illness is said to have begun with a cold that he caught when he visited soldiers in the trenches during a heavy rain to speak words of cheer to them and was himself drenched.

The cold aggravated an ear affliction from which he has suffered for a number of years, and as the physicians of the Red Cross were unable to give him relief a specialist was called from Berlin.

British Storm Tsing-Tau

Australians and Hindus Join Japanese In Attack on German Stronghold.

Pekin, Sept. 26.—The first Japanese attack against the German works at Tsing-Tau on the land side in which the English allies have figured, was begun yesterday, according to information received in this city.

A force of British troops under Brigadier General Nathaniel W. B. Borden, consisting of 800 South Wales Borderers and 400 Indian Sikhs, co-operating with Japanese troops, began bombarding the outer works of the Germans.

The Anglo-Japanese forces are making a vigorous assault against the German works and the German artillery is replying.

British Seize Philadelphia Ship.

London, Sept. 26.—A dispatch from Queenstown says that the Holland American Liner Amsteldyk, which sailed from Philadelphia Sept. 19, with cargo, for Rotterdam, was captured by a British cruiser and taken to Queenstown. After a number of German sailors had been taken from the Amsteldyk the vessel proceeded to her destination.

WILSON TURNS DOWN SECOND TERM BOOST

Feels Such Action Would Prove Embarrassing.

Washington, Sept. 26.—At the direction of President Wilson Secretary Tammany, wrote a letter to New Jersey Democrats, declining to have them endorse the president for a second term.

Mr. Tammany's letter was to Edward E. Grosscup, state treasurer. It follows:

"You were generous enough to consult me as to whether the Democrats of New Jersey should at this time endorse the president for a second term.

I had a talk with the president about it, and he deeply appreciates the generosity of the suggestion, but New Jersey is his home state, the men who would act in this matter are his own personal friends, and he feels that it might seem as if he were taking advantage of the extraordinary situation now existing to gain some personal advantage through such an expression of confidence by them.

"This would be inconsistent with his whole thought and spirit and he shrinks from it as from something that would embarrass him, rather than help him.

"He feels confident that you will know the spirit in which he says this; that in urging the Democrats of New Jersey not to do this he is not abating in the least his deep appreciation."

test. No favoritism will be shown to any one. What the Times and the News wants are new paid-in-advance, bona-fide subscriptions and the best way in which these can be secured is through the personal solicitation of the candidates entered in the campaign.

This is not a "something for nothing" scheme. It is not a scheme at all. It is a business proposition and the prizes will be won by those who are willing to use their spare time to advantage in securing subscribers to The Times and News. This will be a campaign of votes, secured by the candidates among the people whom they can see personally or can reach by telephone and by writing letters.

Enter Campaign Now.

The first thing for a person to do is to fill in the nomination blank with their own name or that of a friend. This counts for 5,000 votes for the person nominated. After a candidate is once credited with these 5,000 votes, there are just two sources from which they can secure more votes. One is by clipping the ten vote coupons from each issue of the Times and News and the other by securing paid-in-advance subscriptions. The latter source is by far the more important as is shown in the schedule published in another part of this paper.

Full particulars of this campaign will be found on two pages of this issue, regardless of the vote in the other district, will be awarded three prizes. A Victrola has been chosen as the first prize in each district. These wonderful Victrolas are all that could be desired in a mechanical musical instrument. By their aid a person may have the very best of any kind of music and may hear reproductions of the world's greatest artists. These machines were purchased for this contest from G. E. Spangler and will be on display at his showroom.

Two beautiful diamond rings purchased from C. A. Blocher, are to be used as second district prizes. These stones are of perfect cut and quality and of unusual brilliancy. They are guaranteed by C. A. Blocher, which is a sufficient assurance of their value.

As the third district prize a gold watch has been chosen. These watches will be Elgin movements, and they will be incased in a twenty-year gold filled case of rich design and may be had in either ladies' or men's size. They were purchased from C. A. Blocher and will be on display at his store during the campaign.

This is one feature of this contest that is sometimes little considered which is of value and that is that in addition to the absolute certainty of securing a prize every contestant gains an experience in meeting people and consulting with them upon a business basis.

This work is always pleasant, honorable and respectable and the business training a young person receives in it cannot be computed in dollars and cents but all the contestants will find it a valuable asset in the affairs of business to which they may be called.

This is the third district prize a cash commission which will be paid to Elgin movements, and they will be incased in a twenty-year gold filled case of rich design and may be had in either ladies' or men's size. Which Was Which?

By EUNICE BLAKE

"Lucy," said Lucinda, "I don't believe your Bob or my Dick can tell us apart."

"Not in the dark," was the reply. "Nor in the light. Suppose we change our engagement rings and see if it doesn't fool them. I'll exchange my diamond solitaire for your sapphire. We dress alike, and Dick has said that we look more alike than any twins he has ever known. The only difference in any of the things about us is our engagement rings."

"We can try it anyway."

So the girls exchanged rings. It was Saturday, and their lovers usually called on that evening. Lucy's fiance came in first, and Lucinda went down to receive him with her sister's diamond ring on her finger.

Bob Brackett arrived half an hour after Weatherbee. He was shown, as usual, into the library, where he found Lucy with her sister's sapphire on her finger. He, too, was deceived. The pair had not been long together when Brackett and Lucinda came into the room where they were.

"We've been discussing the wedding," Brackett said, "and there are points we must talk over with you two. How about the ushers? Shall we limit the reception to relatives or make it general?"

A number of such questions were taken up and discussed. The girls soon dropped their fiances out of the argument, deliberating with each other Dick winked at Bob and said:

"Let's go and have a smoke. Bob We don't count in these wedding plans."

The young men went to the smoking room, and Dick said to Bob, "Seen anything unusual in your girl?"

"No. Why do you ask?"

"They're putting up a job on us. It wasn't Lucinda who received you; it was Lucy."

"You don't mean it?"

"Yes, I do. I found out that Lucinda was with me by talking with her. When I mentioned something that only Lucy knew she was dead ignorant of it. But I didn't let on. I pretended still to be fooled. Now I tell you what we do. When they laugh at us for being fooled we'll declare we're not fooled at all. You cling to Lucy, and I'll do the same by Lucinda."

"Good boy! We'll do it!"

They returned to the library after their smoke without manifesting the slightest evidence that they had discovered the ruse that was being practiced upon them. When they arose to go Dick, bidding good night to Lucinda, offered the usual kiss. She drew back, laughing. He stood looking at her with well feigned surprise.

"I'm not your girl; I'm Lucinda," she said.

"Oh, come! You can't impose on me in that way," said Dick. "You don't suppose I can't tell the girl I love from some other girl, do you?"

At this juncture Lucy, who in like manner had refused Bob a kiss, found it necessary to struggle with him. He pretended to take the matter in high dudgeon. Then the girls, both talking at once and both laughing, tried to explain that they had been playing a joke on their lovers. Dick, who led the way for both, winked at Bob, then walked up to Lucy and took her in his arms, whereupon Bob angrily pulled him away. Dick, in a fine stage passion, struck the man who had interfered with him, and a fracas ensued, the girls trying to part the antagonists.

Bob declared that Lucy was the girl he said.

"Oh, come! You can't impose on me in that way," said Dick. "You don't suppose I can't tell the girl I love from some other girl, do you?"
